"The Talk of the Road" is most amusing and strikingly characteristic. Children turn to it with avidity, while the less ardent parent ponders the different expressions of true native feeling these conversations contain, as a pledge that those who give utterance to them will one day rise above dogmatism and oppression, and assert the moral dignity of themselves and their fellows."—Rugby Advertiser, November 5, 1855.

Dr. Wordsworth's Greek Testament.*THE GREEK TESTAMENT;

WITH NOTES.

By CHR. WORDSWORTH, D.D., Canon of Westminster.

The Four Gospels are now ready. Price 21s.

Orders received by W. CURRY & CO.

"The above work is among the most valuable which have lately appeared in defence of Divine truth. . . . Of the Commentary, the peculiar value is this, that while exegetical and critical, it is not confined to dry exegesis, or (what is too often the case) abounding in impartial statements of conflicting opinions, without any conclusion; but it abounds in moral and spiritual criticism, calling attention to the real and internal spirit of the law and the prophets, as illustrative of the Gospel, and thus exhibiting the proper office of the theologian."—English Churchman, November 27, 1856.

"We may sum up our remarks on this important work, by saying that every page is full of recondite learning, drawn from all the stores which the Church of Christ, in its long succession, so richly furnishes. The first volume contains an immense mass of materials, which the student will receive gratefully, however much he may differ from the general views of the learned and pious editor."—Clerical Journal, December 8, 1856.
